Famous Traditional Dishes in Bali

- Nasi Ayam- chicken rice- It is comprised of shredded chicken, satay, boiled egg, roasted peanuts, french bean salad, sambal, and a bowl of steamed rice
- Ayam Betutu- Balinese spiced chicken-A bowl of steamed rice accompanied by chunks of chicken bathed in chilli sambal with the satay, salad and peanuts makes up the dish
- Lawar- It is primarily made from coconut gratings, to which minced jackfruit, bits of chicken skin, chilies, and coconut milk are added.
- Martabak (v- may contain egg)- Martabak is the Indonesian version of a pancake loaded with a ton of toppings like Toblerone, Nutella, peanuts, chocolate sprinkles, butter, cheese, and condensed milk
- Acai Bowls (v)- Fresh customizable Acai Bowls and Smoothies are becoming popular
- Klepon (v)- Indonesia Sweet Rice Cakes- Made from boiled rice cakes filled with palm sugar and covered in coconut gratings
- Tipat Cantok (v)- Balinese Rice Cake salad- it is made from peanut sauce, rice cakes steamed in palm leaves, cabbage and baby green sprouts, these are mixed thoroughly and drizzled with sweet soy sauce.
- Nasi Goreng- Various spices are mixed to form a thick paste, added to boiled rice and cooked on a slow flame. Loads of vegetables are added along with chicken or other meat (so do be careful to mention!) previously marinated and fried to perfection.
- Sambal Matah- Balinese Raw Sambal- prepared using finely chopped shallots, lemongrass, spices, garlic, and herbs, fried in hot oil with a sprinkle of shrimp paste. It can be eaten as an individual dish or combined with fish or chicken, which enhances the main dish
- Bubur Sumsum (v)- Indonesian Rice Pudding- It is usually syrupy and served hot, garnished with coconut cream and sliced bananas.
- Bebek Betutu or Bebek Goreng – Balinese Roast Duck- It is prepared using a whole duck or chicken stuffed with vegetables, spices and herbs. It takes about 8-12 hours to prepare and thus has a very rich and super-delicious taste.
- Jukut Ares- Balinese Traditional Soup- Salt is added to a finely chopped banana stalk, and the mixture is pressed to remove the moisture and make it devoid of its juices. Turmeric and bay leaves, among other spices, are added along with chunks of chicken, which are mixed thoroughly and put on a low flame
- Pisang Goreng (v)- Indonesian fried banana- It can be paired with ice cream, syrup, chocolate, whipped cream, or eaten as it is. It is eaten mostly as snacks all around the country.
- Gado Gado (v)- Indonesian salad- It is made of potatoes, beans, capsicum and tomatoes, with a peanut sauce dressing. There are multiple variations all over the country.
- Fish Head Soup- Considered a delicacy, the fish head soup cooks the whole fish which are boiled in a broth to which various spices are added
- Serobotan (v)- mixture of various items starting with bean sprouts, spinach, green banana slices, soybeans, and peanuts, topped with coconut and peanut sauce
- Kopi Tubruk (v)- Balinese Coffee

- Rujak - Indonesian Fruit Salad- Green mango, papaya, and yam beans are diced and mixed with shrimp paste, which makes it a bit salty. It is drizzled with chili sauce and is finally dressed with palm sugar
- Es Cendol (v)- made from rice flour jelly, coconut milk, and palm sugar droplets. Occasionally, ice or crushed ice cubes may be added to cool down the drink
