Food Markets in Brussels:

- 1) Marche du Midi- this is the largest market in Brussels and one of the biggest in Europe.
Held every Sunday from 6m- 2pm
It's a bustling and colorful experience with hundreds of stalls selling fresh produce, meat, fish, cheese, spices, clothing, household goods, and a wide variety of international street food (from Moroccan pancakes to Mediterranean delicacies). It's very popular with locals and visitors alike, and you can find great bargains here.
It's advisable to bring cash as many vendors may not accept cards.
- 2) Foodmet \(Marché des Abattoirs\)- this is a modern and trendy food market
Friday-Sunday 7am-2:30pm
It's known for its high-quality fresh produce, meats (a wide selection is on display), cheeses, fish, and other gourmet products. You can also find some souvenir and craft stalls. It's a great place to buy ingredients for cooking or to sample local delicacies.
- 3) Place du Chatelain- a gourmet food market

Every Wednesday (2-7pm)

You'll find local producers selling fresh meat, fruits, vegetables, olives, cheeses, bread, flowers, and more. As the market winds down, the square becomes a popular spot for locals and expats to enjoy an after-work drink and snacks like oysters
- 4) Parvis de Saint- Gilles Market

Sat and Sun – 7:30am- 2pm

It offers a good mix of fresh produce, local and international delicacies, prepared foods, spices, and sometimes flowers and other goods. Saint-Gilles is known as a bohemian area, and the market reflects this vibrant atmosphere
- 5) Place Flagey Market

Tues-sun- 8am- 1pm

You'll find stalls selling fresh fruit and vegetables, cheese, delicatessen items from Belgium and Europe, spices, and prepared foods. Weekends can be particularly lively, with vendors sometimes offering tables and chairs for shoppers to enjoy food and drinks.

- 6) Gare Maritime Food Market- Located in a beautifully repurposed railway station at Tour & Taxis, this indoor food market features various street food stands with cuisines from around the world.
- 7) Wolf Sharing Food Market- A modern food hall offering a variety of international street food concepts, along with a central bar. It's a great place for a casual meal with friends or family

Famous Local Veg Delicacies

- Frites: Often considered the national dish, Belgian fries are unique because they are typically double-fried. or an incredibly crispy exterior and a fluffy interior. They are usually served in a paper cone with a generous dollop of sauce – mayonnaise is classic, but try Andalouse (mayonnaise with tomato paste and peppers) or Pickles sauce
- Stoemp: The Belgian version of mashed potatoes, but elevated! It's made by mashing potatoes with other vegetables, such as carrots, leeks, kale, or Brussels sprouts. Often served as a side dish
- Croquettes: These come in various forms, but shrimp croquettes (garnaalkroketten) and cheese croquettes (Kaaskroketten) are particularly popular. They are creamy fillings encased in a crispy fried breadcrumb coating, often served as appetizers.
- Vegetarian Carbonnade Flamande- You can find vegetarian versions of this hearty stew using ingredients like seitan (wheat gluten), mushrooms, or lentils to replace the beef. The classic beer-based sauce with onions and spices remains the star. Look for "Vegetarische Stoofvlees" or ask if they have a vegetarian stew.
- Vegetarian Waterzooi- The traditional fish or chicken Waterzooi has vegetarian adaptations. These versions feature vegetables like carrots, leeks, potatoes, celery, and sometimes tofu or plant-based protein in a creamy, flavorful broth. Ask for "Vegetarische Waterzooi."
- Chicons au Gratin- This dish can easily be made vegetarian by omitting the ham. You'll still enjoy the slightly bitter endives wrapped and baked in a creamy béchamel sauce topped with melted cheese. Just ask for "Chicons au Gratin sans jambon" (without ham).
- Vegetarian Filet Americain- While traditional Filet Américain is raw beef, vegetarian versions exist made from finely chopped beetroot, lentils, or other plant-based ingredients, seasoned to mimic the texture and flavor. It's less common but worth trying if you find it.
- Vegetarian Paling in 't Gron- Vegetarian versions of this dish might use ingredients like firm tofu, mushrooms, or even large green beans cooked in the vibrant green herb sauce. It's a less common adaptation, but keep an eye out for creative vegetarian options.
- Vegetarian Lapin a la Kriek- Vegetarian versions of this dish would replace the rabbit with ingredients like firm tofu, seitan, or even hearty mushrooms, braised in the sweet and slightly sour Kriek beer sauce. Look for "Vegetarische Kriek" or ask about vegetarian options braised in cherry beer.
- Belgian chocolates- Belgium is world-renowned for its high-quality chocolate. The law dictates a minimum percentage of pure cocoa butter, resulting in a smooth and rich texture. Explore pralines (filled chocolates), truffles, and chocolate bars from countless chocolatiers. Don't miss trying artisanal chocolates from smaller, independent shops.

- Belgian waffles
- Speculoos- Thin, crisp, spiced shortcrust biscuits with a distinctive flavor of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, and ginger. Traditionally associated with St. Nicholas Day (December 6th), they are enjoyed year-round, often served with coffee. The flavor is also used in spreads and other desserts.
- Cuberdons- Cone-shaped purple candies with a hard, chewy exterior and a gooey, syrupy raspberry filling.
- Tarte au Riz- A classic dessert, especially popular in the Wallonia region. It's a sweet tart with a creamy rice pudding filling, often flavored with vanilla.
- Belgian Beer: With hundreds of unique varieties, Belgian beer is an integral part of the country's culture and cuisine. From Trappist and Abbey beers to Lambics, Saisons, and strong ales, there's a beer for every taste. Many dishes are also traditionally paired with specific beers.
