Famous Dishes in England (available in pubs and food markets)

- Pasty's- This baked shell of pastry with a variety of ingredients inside is a super tasty lunch snack that comes from Cornwall in the South West. The traditional Cornish Pasty contains meat- but there are many veg versions.
- Fish and Chips- This classic combination of breaded fish and fried potatoes has been made popular around the world, but it originated in England.
- Sunday Roast- Roast chicken
- Bubble and Squeak is a mix of cooked potatoes, cabbage, and occasionally other ingredients since it's a common dish made from leftovers and offcuts of veg from other dishes. The ingredients are all mixed together and fried.
- Yorkshire Pudding is a traditional food from Yorkshire made from eggs, flour, and milk, and it's often found as a side dish in a Sunday Roast or other pub foods. It's best served with gravy, and you may need to specify that you'd like onion gravy instead of meat-based gravy.
- Victoria Sponge is simple but glorious! With vanilla sponge sandwiching a jam and buttercream (or whipped cream) filling, this is a light, fluffy, and seriously tasty dessert that's typically vegetarian.
- Crumpets- these are small spongy, cake-like treats made from unsweetened batter, and you would usually have them at breakfast, at afternoon tea, or as a sweet snack after a meal.
- Parkin hails from Yorkshire in the north and is a traditional ginger cake made from molasses, oatmeal, and spices. It is sticky, chewy and sweet
- Cheese and Pickle Sandwich- If you're looking for a traditional English lunch food that's vegetarian, you can't go wrong with a Cheese and Pickle Sandwich.
- Onion Rings originated in England, and they're found as a side on many menus all over the country
- Bread and Butter Pudding is a traditional pudding in England that's made from slices of buttered bread, and raisins, and covered in an egg custard mixture containing nutmeg or vanilla. The whole thing is baked to make a lovely sweet dessert that's popular in England.
- Stilton is another English cheese that's incredibly flavourful. It's made from cow's milk, has a blueish-green mould on the surface, and has a strong flavour
- Sticky Toffee Pudding is an English dessert made of moist sponge cake flavoured with dates, and covered in toffee sauce. You'll usually be offered it with custard or vanilla ice cream
- Cauliflower Cheese- florets of boiled cauliflower covered in a milk-based cheese sauce and baked in the oven so it's gooey underneath and a little crispy on top. Delicious, and vegetarian.

- Scones- They're sweet and often eaten with jam and cream as part of a cream tea or afternoon tea in England
- Mushy peas are prepared by boiling marrowfat peas with soda bicarbonate, resulting in a thick pea soup.
- Beans on toast is a classic, straightforward dish often associated with British cuisine but enjoyed worldwide.
- Trifle- A traditional English trifle has layers of fruit, cream, and cake to make an eye-catching dessert.
- Eatons mess- meringue, cream and fruit.
